PSYCHOLOGICAL SUPPORT

Psychological support helps to better understand and overcome psycho-emotional difficulties. A psychologist helps to better understand the situation and to identify resources. A patient receiving psychological support can see and change ineffective patterns of behaviour. The specialist listens, encourages overcoming difficulties, shows how to focus energy to achieve goals, helping both to improve quality of life and to make it easier to survive difficulties.

CAREER COUNSELLING

The visit of a career counsellor for career and development will focus on the achievement of goals. The counsellor will help you to understand your situation and opportunities, to see new solutions. The counsellor will best provide psychological support in solving practical problems by allowing you to look at the situation differently and understanding one's own resources and strengths, as well as giving practical advice for career development.

SUPERVISOR COUNSELLING

Supervision is a counselling and educational support carried out in a professional context with the aim of improving professional competence, the quality of professional activity and fostering professional development. Supervision is carried out by a specialist in a specific professional field who has also obtained a supervisory qualification. Supervision can be useful in helping students to map out their professional development trajectory and opportunities.

SUPPORT IN CASE OF STUDY DIFFICULTIES

This counselling is provided if students are having difficulties with their studies or are having problems with their relationship with a member of staff. A counselling session usually lasts between 30 and 45 minutes. The first consultation will clarify the situation, allowing for a better understanding of the difficulties and a plan of action. When making an appointment for counselling, it is a good idea to assess what exactly is making it difficult for the student to study, so that both listening and discussing options for further action can be discussed during the conversation.

MENTOR SUPPORT

Alumni mentors have volunteered to share their life and work experiences with the student during the semester or academic year. By becoming supportive, listening and giving suggestions on how to better achieve goals, mentors are willing to work on issues related to career, personal as well as academic development.
